

Discipline: Practical production management

Annotation

Labor intensity: 3 ECTS, 108 academic hours.

Final control form: exam

The course "Practical production management" is devoted to the study of theoretical, methodological and practical issues of organization and management of production processes.

Within the framework of this discipline, questions of the formation infrastructure of a production organization and the creation of production and structural units, the use of rational methods of labor organization and production processes, problems of rationing and remuneration, principles operational calendar planning and management production technological processes, methods of organizing innovative processes in production organization, the principles of updating the range of products produced products and the introduction of new products into production, mechanisms for the introduction of new production and technological processes, problems of evaluating efficiency and choice methods of introducing new products into production, quality improvement systems and competitiveness of manufactured products.