

Discipline: Research of political and economic processes

Annotation

Labor intensity: 2 ECTS, 72 academic hours.

Final control form: test.

Discipline "Research of political and economic processes" is designed to form students' ideas about the types and types processes and the possibilities of their scientific research.

In accordance with the purpose, the main goal of the discipline is:

- formation of knowledge about the types and types of controlled and uncontrolled processes;
- development of analytical skills, the use of modern research methods, diagnosing and evaluating processes.

The discipline "Research of political and economic processes" is an integral discipline that summarizes the information obtained in the process of studying other, specific disciplines. It forms the basis for independent research, as the basis for making important management decisions.

This discipline is one of the main components of the culture of a modern manager, regardless of areas of his professional activity: at the enterprise, in the state authorities or local government.

The discipline is included in the cycle of general professional disciplines, on a systemic level is associated with such disciplines as "Theory of Management", "Theory of Organization", "Applied Sociological Research", etc.